

WEST AMENDMENTS GO OVER TO NOV.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS ARE CONSIDERED INSUFFICIENT.

COURT SUSTAINS PROTEST

Cannot Be Prepared in Time For Primary Election and Must Be Held for General Election

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—The supreme court today upheld the ruling of Secretary of State Ben F. Harrison in that protests filed against four of the West constitutional amendments were insufficient. The ruling of the high court means that the amendments will be voted on, but it will be impossible to prepare them in time for the primary election next Tuesday. They must necessarily go over to the general election in November.

Protest was filed against two of the amendments by Parker W. Cross. The measure proposing a change in the judicial department of the state, consolidating the supreme court and the original court of appeals, and another changing the legislature to one body, were protested by Cross on the ground they were unconstitutional. The other two measures were protested by H. M. Sinclair, Scottsdale.

Secretary of State Harrison in his ruling on the measures held that the evidence presented to him in support of the claim that they had not been regularly submitted and the petitions irregular, was insufficient to invalidate the petitions. From his decision an appeal was taken to the supreme court.

The opinion of the high court was written by Justice Haskins, and all the other justices concurred except Justice Lambourn, who was not present.

In passing on the constitutional question raised by the protesters, the court said that the people were the sole power in the constitution could be changed, and that if they sought to make any change in the constitution of the state, it was not a matter subject to interference by the judiciary.

As to the argument that the proposed constitutional changes were repugnant to the federal constitution, the court said that was a matter not subject to review by the Oklahoma supreme court.

Only a slight difference between the ballot title in the petitions and that in the original papers was not sufficient to invalidate the petitions, said the court in passing on that phase of the protest.

85 western roads, President Wilson today appealed to representatives of the employers and employees to accept settlement plans proposed by the federal board of mediation and conciliation. Both sides promised to consider his proposal. They will give him a definite answer Monday.

W. A. Carter and Warren S. Stone, representing the firemen and engineers, said the men already have accepted in principle the mediation board's plan. The president asked the railroad managers to do likewise. They have rejected the plan once.

The mediators plan is to restore schedules in effect prior to October 1913 with certain amendments and rulings and to submit to arbitration the question of wages.

BECKHAM TO BE SENATOR

Returns Say Former Governor Won in Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 1.—Newspaper returns, practically complete from 105 out of 120 counties in today's Kentucky primaries indicated former Governor J. C. W. Beckham had won the Democratic nomination for the long term in the United States senate by several thousand votes over Representative A. O. Stanley and Governor James H. McCreary.

For the short term Senator J. N. Camden secured certain of the Democratic nomination, and William Marshall Hitt, former United States solicitor general, of the Republicans.

London Wants 4. Motto.

The members of the London county council are making their brains to find a suitable motto to put on the city's new coat of arms. Several Latin mottoes have been rejected, a preference for English having been expressed.

George Bernard Shaw has offered the helpful suggestion that the council adopt Shelley's "Hell is a city much like London."

The official seal of the corporation of London was formally abandoned December 2, last and a new one substituted. The old one had been in constant use for 522 years. It bore the image of St. Paul and a beaver. Henry VIII ordered the destruction of all images and pictures of the former throughout the realm, but the seal by error was described in official records as depicting St. Peter instead of St. Paul, and thus it escaped destruction.

Special Announcement

It was stated in this paper a few days ago that the Middle West Lumber Company had acquired with original intent which is an untrue statement. The statement was an imposition on all whom it concerned.

Proved His Platitude.

Most old men have some pet platitudes. Brown, an old citizen, said: "Patience and perseverance will accomplish all things," was his favorite saying. One day, when he made this remark in a train, a pompous individual in the further corner turned to him and said:

"Nowhere, sir, I can tell you a great many things which neither patience nor perseverance can accomplish."

"Perhaps you can," said Brown, "but I have never yet come across one."

At this the pompous individual grew irritable.

"Well, then, he snapped, 'I'll tell you one. Will patience and perseverance enable me to carry water in a sieve?'"

"Do you want to carry water in a sieve?" asked Brown.

"That's not the point, sir," roared the other. "What I said was—will patience and perseverance enable me to do so?"

"Certainly, my dear sir," replied Brown. "Certainly, if you can wait patiently for the water to freeze!"

Put It Up Squarely to His Honor.

"So you have been beating your wife again, Mauley?" sternly began Squire Hambsbottom. "Well, tell your story."

"Aw, what's he use, huh?" roared the culprit. "Lemme as you, ya know. Is ya ever tried to live with a plumb no 'count nigger 'woman'? Uhhuh, if ya do ya know all about it already, and if you don't you couldn't understand how onery she kin act if I talked all day."

PUBLIC OPINION OF TULSA DAILY WORLD

UNIVERSALLY RECOGNIZED AS STATE'S GREAT. EST DAILY.

CIRCULATION IS GROWING

Scores of Voluntary Subscriptions in Past Few Days; Some of the Letters.

"Oklahoma's greatest newspaper."

This is the unanimous verdict of thousands of persons who daily read the Tulsa Daily World.

As an evidence of the growing popularity of the World letters of congratulation have been pouring in from all parts of the nation. One man in far-off Romania sends $12 for a three months' subscription to the World and declares that he doesn't want to miss a single copy.

A preacher down at Stigler, Okla., says he "can't get along without the World."

A city official at Dallas writes in that he "considers the World the best all-around newspaper he ever read."

There are no soldiers in the field, one hundred and ten voluntary subscriptions have been received in the past eight days. Each one was accompanied by the cash or money order.

The sworn circulation statement, published each day at the head of the editorial column, shows that the average daily circulation of the World for the month of July was 13,295. This is the highest point the circulation of the World has ever reached. And it is still growing, day by day and by leaps and bounds.

The public sees in the World a newspaper of a new kind, a new paper that stands for all that is best in life, that is a friend of all the people, that lures the graver and the thief and the crook without fear and that upholds the cause of good government and true patriotism and has the courage of its conviction.

An average of 43,395 individuals personally endorsed the World every day last month, in addition to the thousands of non-subscribers who read the paper for its extra amount.

The World has over 66 regular employees, not including carriers and newsboys. It has a weekly pay roll in excess of $1,100. It does an annual business of more than $150,000, fully half of which comes from cities and towns other than Tulsa.

Bona-Fide Letters.

Taken indiscriminately from the files of the circulation department, the following voluntary letters received during the past few days give a fair idea of the popularity of the World and present a splendid synopsis of what the people think.

ROBERT ROMANA, July 18.—Tulsa World, Tulsa, Okla. Dear Sir:—I have sent you your office mail order for $12, for which please mail me the World for three months. The postage will take up the extra amount. Notify me in due time before the paper expires so I can renew my subscription in time to not miss a single copy. Yours, R. ROMANA.

The Virtue of Tolerance.

Is there really such a thing as a sense of fair play? I know it has been the boast of the English-speaking peoples that they have it in abundance, but if we honestly search our minds can we truthfully say that the boast is well founded? Take a baseball game. The crowd is intensely partisan. It sees only its own favorites and invariably sides with them if a dispute arises. The same thing is true of any other sport, even college sports, where the students are supposed to represent the flower of culture of our youth.

In politics the thing is accentuated. Colonel Roosevelt, for instance, has many friends who can not fault in their ideal. Yet he is human, therefore fallible. On the other hand his enemies—and he has them a plenty—can not be good in him.

England is no better—if anything worse. The recent speeches of Rudyard Kipling show the bitterest and most unbecoming partisanship, admitting no virtue whatever in his opponents.

In tolerances a virtue? None of us say so, but our own little words, if the tolerance which we necessarily profess to be one of the most desirable of attributes in all we say it is, would seem to be a good thing for the American people to attain their mind to tolerant habits of thought. "Certainly we need more mental discipline."—Charlotte Herald.

"The Days That Are No More."

The power of first love has resulted in much better attention than we can afford to give to the serious matters that life presents. An accident (readable) worthy of a novel. It is an excellent example of the time in which we live.

John P. married twice. In his first and wedding journey he visited a business acquaintance in a "blow" chamber town. On his arrival he presented his bride in this splendid way. "This," said he, "is Mrs. P. (former) John P. I wish to thank you for the Champagne."

Enthusiasm at Its Apex
She—Your friend for a bit of my spirit, isn't he?
He—A bit. Why, if he hadn't been, he would have been a good thing for the American people to attain their
